

In the Year of Our Lord 2005

May the Peace of the Lord be yours in this Christmas season.

2005 will be remembered, by many, as a time of storms. The National Weather Service gave names to some of these storms: Hurricanes Katrina and Rita impacted our whole nation. There were nameless storms as well, which brought mudslides to some and forest fires to others, flooding to some and blizzards to others. 2005 also – like any other year – brought “storms” of turmoil in our lives in the form of health battles, financial challenges, losses and grieving among friends and family. Yet we face 2006 without fear because the One Who calmed the sea, Jesus, has been our guide and provider all year long and has promised “never will I leave you nor forsake you.” How gladly we celebrate His coming into this world!

The last year has been an exciting one at Dossin Business Solutions, Inc. Two of our major clients were sold. Last December a client that has given us about two days work a week for nine year was sold by a financial company that had been squeezing resources out of the company to a buyer that really wants to build it up for the long term. This transaction was followed shortly by a change in top management that we believe will be very positive. We are pleased with these changes and hope that we can be part of the progress for years to come.

We are doing little for second major client that was sold, but we have been very busy with that transaction because the owner retained a subsidiary company that had depended on the parent for much of its administrative needs. We have been setting up the Treasury, Accounting, Payroll, Human Resources, and Risk Management functions to be independent of the former parent company. We are expecting the time committed to this company to decline as the set up process is completed, but we are looking forward to many projects that the owner has discussed with us.

We were blessed to have three new clients referred to us by existing clients this year. We are truly honored when existing or past clients have found our services to be valuable enough that they tell others about us.
